ment opposite the "Colonist" Office, Government street, for the sale of self siyled conservatives, but who would, our opinion, be more correctly defined as obstructives, which in its application is a Ladies' Dresses, Mantles, Shawls, antagonistic to common sense as are most o the old proverbs quoted by cantankero and sarcastic individuals for the purpose of exposing or holding up to reprodution an weakness of their neighbors: The phrase to which we allude is frequently used by those who hold themselves aloof from public affairs and affect to contemn the exertions and efforts of those who devote a portion of their time to the business of the town, country, BENEFIT OF MRS. W. H. LEIGHTON! state, colony or country, in which they are living, and is applied to any discussion which extends beyond the ordinary routine of daily business. We can understand the sense it which persons living in an old country use the phrase, when they stigmatize any debate in a Colonial Council or Assembly, of more Mrs Haller... Pirs W II Leighton
The Stranger... Mr A R Phelps
SONG Mrs N Leslie than wonted warmth or energy as being "a tempest in a tea-po.t'. Accustomed to read reports of events of national and worldwide importance, they are very apt to contrast with them unfavorably the minor events passing in Colonial Parliaments and Houses o Assembly. But when we hear those, who dwelling in a colony and deriving their incomes and support therefrom, affect to despise the legislative powers and the public men of that colony, adopting the same strain, we are certainly disposed to form but a very light estimate of their characters : they affect generally a superiority over their neighbors, which their very apathy, as regards public affairs, shows they do not possess. There is little gain to any man from taking part in public business of any nature, but honor there is, thought of their own convenience, case or leisure, devote themselves steadily to the public duties which it may fall to their lots to discharge, and no right-thinking man will despise those who conscientiously endeavor to perform public duties properly. There is a sort of prestige about the senting a constituency in a House of Assembly, which, ridicule it how you will, is more or less valued by all persons, and we thick not without reason. All colonies must have small beginnings, and when our House of Assembly is brought into comparison with The Poll will be kept open from eight a.m. the House of Commons, which is the to four o'clock, p. m. oldest and most independent body of representatives which the world show, it cannot but suffer from the contact, but it cannot be denied that its measures and actions as affecting public as well as individual rights and property in the colony, are of infinitely greater interest and moment to property holders here than the most subtle political questions decided in the Imperial Parliament, which do not affect simile to show the inapplicability of the phrase quoted—a storm sufficiently powerful to upset the scalding contents of the domestic tea pot would for the moment distress the presiding graces of the tea table more than the report of a terrible railway accident or earthquake in Europe would do. less apathy respecting the conduct of public affairs in this colony would have given a little less work to those who have been appointed to revise some of the acts of public bodies and individuals, and we think that those who would by their apathetic inaction and by ridicule of those who are inclined to do their duty, endeavor to check constitutional inquiry are no true friends to the colony, it is such as these who encourage and foster; radicalism of the worst kind, which is engendered by the powerful reaction which must sooner or later set in after a prolonged period of apathy in public affairs. We are glad to notice that the chairman of the Crown Lands Committee and those who have a bly supported him in a struggle for ope a inquiry are determined not to let the investigation be quashed for want of information. As the

voted independently on Thursday there is yet some hope that the truth will be elicited. It is refreshing in these days of tory apathy and radical self-vaunted supremacy to read the sentiments of a correspondent who does himself a conservative Our columns are always open to free discussion, and we infinitely prefer to hear both sides of a question to being compelled to form a partial judgment from one-sided testimony. We cannot altogether endorse the sentiments of "Conservative," but we well remember the case of the O'Donoghue, in the House of Commons, and since that occasion strangers have more than once been ordered to withdraw, although as we have already stated, reporters were not excluded. We Cariboo Claim for Sale fear that we do not come within our cor respondent's definition of sensible rightminded persons, for we cannot but think that if the House of Assembly committed an error at all, which we fear is fully proved even by our correspondent's own showing, if not by their own acts, it was in undoing what they had in the exercise of their proper prerogative done. What "Conservative" suggests, as a proper act of courtesy on the part of the House, would, if its conduct had been proved unconstitutional, have been probably although somewhat contemptible, the only open course, but we believe that in asserting their prerogative in this instance, the House of Assembly were acting in a proper and dignified manner. We regret that that same dignity was not longer observed and better

The adjourned hearing of the charges pre ferred against several saloon keepers for vending liquors after 12 o'clock on Saturday night, was resumed yesterday in the polic Mr. Pemberton said he would not detain the parties in court, but he wished to make a lew remarks before disposing of the cases. He had considered the points raised by the legal gentlemen at the last sitting of the court and did not purpose entering into a discussion on the subject; he took it to be sufficient that the publicans denied the right to be brought before him under their license. He should therefore not take further steps under the present proceedings but as they re-pudiated their licences they must be tried under the common law for keeping disorderly houses.

His Worship continued to observe that it rever was his intention to impose penalties in the present cases, but it had become cus-tomary to mix up theatrical and other enter-tainments with a spirit license, which he did of consider it was the intention of the law o recognise. Women were employed and pirits inflamed the men making them disorspirits inflamed the men making then disor-derly. He did not think the Publicans could complain of the treatment they had received from him since he had been on the bench, and he had no wish to interfere unne-cessarily with the enjoyments of the public, but he certainly was averse to what he con-sidered a pollution of the Sabbath and had given strict orders to the police to see that the proper hours on that day were obser-wed.

belonging to Miss Metzger. Sergt. Hill deposed that the brooch was found upon McDonald's person when searched. The own-crebin of the article having been established Mr. Pemberton asked the prisoner if he had anything to say. McDonald replied by asking the magistrate whether he intended to adjudicate himself or send the case to a higher court? and upon learning that he would be sent for trial to the Supreme Court, the prisoner declined to make any statement.

The bill for the amendment of the Act of Incorporation, so far as regards the election of Mayor and Councillors for the ensuing year, amended by the Legislative Council to the 6th November instead of the 9th for the elections, passed its third reading. EDITOR BEITISH COLONIST—Sir.—In your contemporary's issue this morning (Friday), I observe one or two inaccuracies in its censorious editorial, which I trust, according to your practice of fair play, will be corrected in your columns. The request made yesterday by one of the hon, members was in every way contitutional and parliamentary, though a contrary inference might be drawn from the remarks of the Chronicle. To say the movement of yesterday is without precodent, appears to me as unjust as it is fallacious, as also is the supposed information, that no order for the evelucion of strangers has been put in force in the House of Commons since the year 1849, since it must be present to EDITOR BRITISH COLONIST-SIR-In your Mr. Bayley moved that the minutes of the Magisterial Department of Nanaimo be laid Also, for returns in regard to the appointment of Postmaster for Nanaimo. Also, for information in regard to the Also, for correspondence in regard to making Nanaimo a Port of Entry.

Mr. DeCosmos gave notice that he would the year 1840, since it must be present to the memory of most of your readers that about Mr. DeCosmos gave notice that he would move that a copy of the letter of the Colonial Secretary to the Acting Surveyor General, forbidding him to produce the documents required by the Committee of Crown Lands, be laid before the House. two years ago such a course was sclopted, when the O'Donougnus sent his friend Major Gavin to Sir Robt. Peel, calling the right bon, Baronet to account for ullusions scade ADMINISTRATION OF OATHS.

Mr. DeCosmos gave notice that at next session of this flouse he would bring in a bill to amend the Act for the Administration of Oaths. His intentien in bringing in this bill was to relieve two classes of our community who were prevented by the present act from taking the oath in a Court of Justice.

Administration of Wednesday: now upon a view munity who were prevented by the present act from taking the oath in a Court of Justice.

House finding it had made a mistake, merely the motion of Wednesday: now upon a view of the whole circumstances it must appear to every sensible, right-minded person, that the House finding it had made a mistake, merely the notion of Vednesday, now upon a monity who were prevented by the present tet from taking the outh in a Court of Instice.

The House went into Committee of the whole incurrent they had done in Further, I am disposed to think that contemporary presumes too much in second the property of their readers covering that they are the present that two of their readers covering the that two of their readers covering the terminal Dr. Helmeken brought forward his amendment to the Cowicha and Comax Representation bill, granting a representative to the district of Alberni, said district to be twenty-five miles square, each side to be five miles long and the centre of the district to be at the forks of the Somas River.

Mr. DeCommos said that the cases of Alberni and Cowichan and Comax were not similar. The hon. member had not shown us that there were residents at Alberni qualified to vote; the land was all owned by gentlemen in England; if there were any residents there to vote he would with pleasure second the smendment. that two of their readers entertain the idea that a member of the Upper House enjoys an immunity of control of the Lower House. Again, I differ from the Chronicle, and hold that Mr. Pearse was protected by his right and not by a ruse; 'in fact, it might be held that it would have been only conrecus on the sidered a polition of the Sabbath and had given strict orders to the police to see that the proper hours on that day were observed.

Mr. Bishop remarked that his clients did not repudiate their licenses, but the whole question would be set at rest by a bill shorty to be introduced into the Legislature which would place the whole obdy of Licenses of Victuallers under binding restrictions and prevent one from having any undue advantage over the other. It would also provide in the clearest manner for the punishment of parties contravening or edending and thus remove the difficulties which the bench at present experiences.

The court again signified that the present charges would be been at prevent when the pair they would be parties by denying the logality of their licenses and limble to indictment under the common law before a higher court. Mr. Pemberton said he would call the alternative of making another observation. He had been from several quarters furth the police had not done their duty; in fact Duck mail had been leviced, and he would call the attention of the publicians to such a serious imputation as his. If such had been practiced or permitted the misshef was incalculated; it would not be will be self-to be self-to

to make any charge whatever against the officers but he might mention what ho had himself been told which had probably given rise to the impression. One or two of his clients had paid officers to keep extra warch over their premises that their presence might be the means of preserving order. He did not think there were many Englishmen in these settlements who would not be will be the means of preserving order. He did not the circumstance of his having applied for an officer to watch the Lyceum, and offered if an officer could not be spared to pay for a special one. He could vouch of pay for a special one. He could vouch on the police by that establishment.

Mr. Pemberton said he was pleased to hear so far that there was no real foundation for the imputation.

Mr. Bishop thanked the bench on behalf of the Association for not pressing the cases any further, and the court dismissed the gummonses.

The public have a right to know who are aspirants to the position of civic legislators, and it is proper also that they should know it in sufficient time to enable them to make up their minds on the matter, and to agree upon the best and most suitable persons to fill the onerous and honorable position of Councillors for our young and rising candidates to come forward and declare themselves at once; there is no time to be lost.

The locenty continues to draw crowded to refuse any scrutiny into the coronactive or other privilege, especially in the internal affairs of the vice-royalty. Oherwise, we are not a free people. It is our property in question now. How soon may it not be our personal liberty? It is not be our personal liberty?
